Hollywood report

Two car movies to watch out for: first, a thriller due Sept. 10 called Cellular starring Kim Basinger as a kidnap victim who patches together a cellphone and can make just one call for help. Stranger Chris Evans takes Basinger's call on his cellphone and has to drive across Los Angeles and back in a day to save her, mangling more than a few cars in the process.

"It's kind of like Phone Booth with Speed mixed in," director David R. Ellis told us. "It's nonstop action."

The other movie is called 32 Hours 7 Minutes. That's the record time for driving from New York to L.A., set more than 20 years ago in the U.S. Express, sort of a follow-up to the original Cannonball Baker Sea-to-Shining-Sea Memorial Trophy Dash. This documentary is about the real guys who really drove in that race. See the trailer at 32hours7minutes.com. It makes its big-screen premiere in fall 2005.
